The Dance of Life BK DNC by Jody and Jon Sheppard

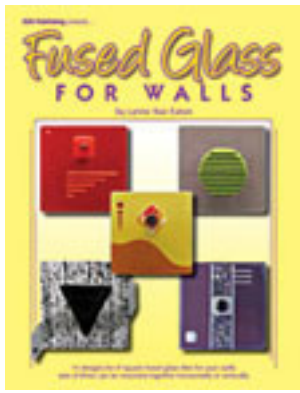

Dancers try to express meaning through the patterns of dance. Jody Sheppard tries to express the language of dance through her patterns for stained glass in "The Dance of Life". Although a dance disappears when it is finished, some performances are so memorable that the dancer and the interpretation is never forgotten. Jody tries to capture these moments in her 19 evocative glass panels. Crafters will have fun recreating the ballet, the waltz, the cha cha, a pas de deux or scenes from a dance class, as well as many other historical and contemporary dance styles from around the globe.

Starcatchers BK STR by Scott Haebich

Ever since Scott's Starbursts pattern book was released 3 years ago, glass crafters have been requesting smaller "suncatcher size" versions of the kaleidoscopic images in that collection. "Starcatchers" fulfills that request with 20 full-size starburst patterns that are only 6" to 7.5" in diameter. You can use any combination of your favourite glass colours and textures in these easy-to-create window hangings. Rather than filling up a window with one large Starburst, you can hang several of these smaller Starcatchers to liven up a room. They also make great gift items.

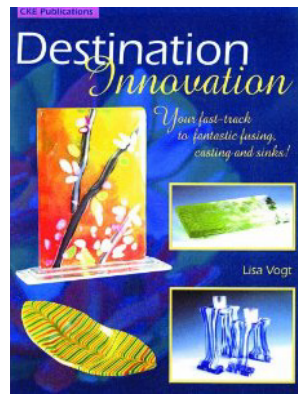

NEW - Fusing Books

Fused Glass For Walls
BK FGW
 by Lynne Rae Eaton

If you're running out of window space for your art glass creations, this book is what you need. Lynne Rae Eaton (Time for Glass and Art Strips) offers up contemporary designs for 15 fused tiles to decorate your walls. Each tile is only 6"x6" so you can create them in even a very small kiln. These tiles are intended to be created in sets of three (or more) and then mounted, using hardware from Hang Your Glass, so that they "float" an inch or so in front of your wall. You can display the tile sets horizontally or vertically, depending what kind of space you are trying to enhance. Or use them individually to liven up a small nook or cranny. Hang your glass kits are available at:
